

ABSTRACT

A cooking device containing a muffle delimiting a cooking chamber including a hot-air heating unit, a high-speed heating unit and a control unit for regulating a high-speed heating mode. The high-speed heating unit having at least one upper heating unit. The control unit switches on the upper heating unit while simultaneously adjusting the high-speed cooking mode exclusively when operating with the hot-air heating unit.